Well-Known Attorney Urges

Water Service

Borough council was told last evening that the water situation in Bristol is "really, really critical." This statement was made at the regular session by Dennis J. Roche, chairman of water committee. "I want to warn you councilmen and I want to go on record," said Mr. Roche in making the statement. "We are losing water at the wells."

At this point President of Council, John F. Smoyer, III, requested the finance and water committees to investigate the possibility of procuring government assistance in financing enlargement of the building of new water plant, now that Bucks County has been declared a critical defense area.

Burgess I. J. Hetherington, Sr., in his remarks to council at the opening of the session, said that there has been another bid received during the past few days by an industry to locate here. The industry, it was stated, would require 1,000,000 gallons of water daily and therefore they were refused because the borough does not have the water to supply them.

Burgess Hetherington then read a letter received from Hugh B. Eastburn, of Eastburn, Begley & Fullam, well-known attorneys and real estate brokers.

The letter reads:

October 8, 1951.

I, J. Hetherington, Burgess and President and Members of Bristol Borough Council Gentlemen:

The lower half of Bucks County is faced with the greatest industrial, residential and business expansion of any part of the United States, but that expansion depends on one thing—water.

Bristol, Morrisville, Yardley and Langhorne have little or no water to sell. Wells drilled by the Levitt Company and the Danherst Corporation have proved that there is no adequate underground supply. Both will go to the river for what they need—a loss to Bristol Borough of two large customers.

As of today, there are two industries and two builders who want to locate and build in the Bristol area. Their water requirements average

THE WAR

TOKYO — Anti-aircraft batteries on the Manchurian side of the Yalu river have extended the Communists "sanctuary" into a portion of North Korea. Allied fighter-bombers no longer attack the Korean Yalu river port of Siniu because they cannot fight back against the flak batteries based on the off-limits Chinese territory just across the river.

EIGHTH ARMY HQ. — American troops advanced little more than a mile in west Korea and were limited to even smaller gains on the east central front today in bloody battles with stubborn Reds. A Tuesday evening Eighth Army communiqué acknowledged "heavy" resistance which slowed the Allied autumn offensive to a snail's pace in both areas.

EJECTMENT ACTIONS IN COURT TOTAL TWO*One in Newtown Area, The Other is in Borough of Pennel*AUTO DAMAGE CASE

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 9.—A Newtown defendant and one from Pennel borough are involved in two ejectment cases in county courts here. There is also a $277 two-car auto damage claim growing out of a collision in Penn Valley and another suit in which a Lower Southampton complainant is suing for $5,067.

In an action in assumpsit, Leslie W. J. Tanner, Lower Southampton township, has named Robert H. Hewitt, Huntingdon Valley, the defendant, claiming $5,067.50, growing out of the construction of a house and developing a property.

Charles W. E. Clarke, 728 Clarendon rd., Narberth, in an action in trespass, is suing the owner of a car Dorothy C. Orr, and the driver, William Davenport, 501 Putnam rd., Merion, claiming $277.90.

The plaintiff was driving his car East in Penn Valley, April 7, when it figured in a collision with a car driven South by the defendant at the intersection of Clarendon and Broadacres rds.

John H. Fuhrman and Marjorie D. Fuhrman have filed an ejectment in which they have named Lizzie Burns, 13-15 Court st., Newtown, the defendant. The complainants own a double-brick house and aver the defendant lives at 14.

Ira L. and Bessie Kinney, Pine st., Langhorne, have filed an ejectment in which George S. and Helen R. Bonham, Lincoln highway, Pennel, are the defendants. The suit grows out of an agreement of sale, dated April 2, 1945, and deals with a rental payment problem.

Write of summons in trespass: Roland T. and Gertrude Moyer versus John R. Freefield, Bethlehem.

HOUSING CREDIT CONTROLS RELAXED
AFTER COUNTY IS DECLARED A CRITICAL
DEFENSE AREA; SPURS BUILDING

By International News Service
WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 9.—The Housing and Finance Agency yesterday relaxed housing credit controls in eight localities after they were declared critical defense housing areas by the Office of Defense Mobilization. The regions affected included Bucks County.

House scarcity, because of nearby defense plants, for security installations, these regions were also made eligible for benefits of defense housing and community facilities assistance act. Provisions of these acts call for liberalized mortgage insurance, federal aid, in the installation of essential community services and facilities, in limited amounts of federally built houses to supplement the local supply if necessary. However, as the federal acts have not been approved by Congress, the benefits will not be immediately available.

These aids are designed to encourage the construction of housing for defense workers and military personnel.

They include not only the relaxation of credit restrictions but upon appropriation by Congress of the necessary funds, liberalized mortgage insurance for programmed defense housing, aid to communities in the provision of essential com-

Borough council, last night, voted all borough employees a "non-recurring cost-of-living bonus" of $50 each. When the question of paying the bonus was brought to the floor of council by George Duffy, chairman of finance committee, an argument was immediately touched off. Mr. Duffy reported that he and the members of his committee, along with the borough treasurer had studied the granting of the bonus and that it was the recommendation of the committee not to grant the bonus, as the borough finances would not stand it. Mr. Duffy enumerated some of the borough's obligations and argued that if council wanted to stay within the limits of the budget, the expense of a bonus should not be incurred.

Councilman Smoyer said that he thought it was a shame that the borough could not give the bonus to its employees. This brought forth the comment from Duffy that Council had the right to vote such a bonus if it saw fit. Councilman Pascale offered to give three months

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 9.—The December term of criminal court grand jury will be presented with plans, now being prepared, for the new addition to the Court House, here, according to announcement made Thursday by Ernest H. Harvey, chief clerk to the County Commissioners.

Clerk Harvey pointed out that Fred F. Martin and an associate architect, who has been called in for consultation, are now preparing plans for the addition.

The East Court street two-story building, which is practically square, will be retained. Court Room, No. One, which is an old-fashioned, castle-like interior, and has tiered seating arrangements, will be torn down and the new addition built to the present stone unit which faces East Court street and has the clock and bell tower.

The actions announced yesterday make immediately available the assistance of the Federal National Mortgage Association in facilitating the flow of private mortgage financing.

The FNMA will now be able to make prior commitments, to the limited extent authorized by Congress, for the purchase of mortgages on dwellings already programmed by the HHFA.

This assistance will be available to the newly designated areas also as soon as the HHFA determines the amount and kind of defense housing needed in those localities, which is expected to be done within a few days.

Mr. Duffy explained that of the $16,000 received from the Phila. Electric Co. for a right-of-way, that $2500 had been earmarked for traffic lights, $10,000 for a building for the storage of tools and equipment and $2500 for the expenses of the sewer bond issue.

It was at this point that some of the councilmen asked why lay aside $10,000 for a building for the storage of tools and equipment, which had not been voted upon by council and which was not provided for in the budget. Mr. Duffy told the councilmen that the present building is falling down.

Mr. Byers in support of Mr. Duffy, and the committee's report said there was numerous other expenses facing council which had to be paid.

Yom Kippur Starts At Sundown This Evening

The most solemn day of the Jewish religious year, the Day of Atonement, will be observed by prayer and fasting from sundown today until sundown tomorrow.

The Day of Atonement, called in Hebrew, Yom Kippur, is dedicated to personal purification and ennoblement. Yom Kippur evening and Yom Kippur day are spent in the synagogues. There the sins committed against Him, are confessed to God. In humble prayer, repentance is avowed and God is asked for His mercy and forgiveness.

Observant Jews fast on Yom Kippur in order that the entire day may be a spiritual occasion, unbroken by any concern with worldly matters such as food and drink.

Yom Kippur will open today with an evening service distinguished by the haunting and unforgettable strains of the Kol Nidre chant. The mood of Kol Nidre and of the entire Day of Atonement, with its deep solemnity, set the stage for the memorial service of Yom Kippur day, an hour of worship devoted to remembering the departed relatives of the worshippers and drawing spiritual lessons from their lives.

Late tomorrow afternoon, the Day of Atonement will be brought to a close, as in olden days, by the sounding of a long note on the ram's horn or "shofar," the primitive musical instrument that Jewish synagogues still use as they did in Bible times.

Yom Kippur follows the Jewish New Year by ten days. It comes as the climax of the period of soul-searching and prayer known as the Ten Days of Penitence.

FAIRLESS HILLS, Oct. 9.—Bucks County's newest community of size is believed to have the highest percentage of residents listed as post office box holders for any community its age.

At the post office in Fairless Hills—a post office as yet not officially named—the percentage is almost 100. Of the 108 families now residing in the "Hills," 100 have been assigned boxes. The remaining eight, according to the postmaster, Mrs. Catherine E. Ottolini, receive their mail for the most part at their business offices, most of them being officials of the U. S. First day cancellations are still mounting, "late comers" still getting in on such cancellations due to the fact no official word has been received by the postmaster regarding the name to be assigned the post office.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9.—For the third time the U. S. Supreme Court has refused to review the case of David Darcy. Darcy had been sentenced to death for his part in the murder of two men in the hold-up at Feasterville Tavern, Dec. 22, 1947.

There is still pending for Darcy another appeal to the highest court in the land, so Darcy's chances of escaping death are not at an end. The appeal still pending is routed through the federal district and appeals courts to the supreme court.

The refusal yesterday to intervene was on an appeal carried directly from the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, which last April declined to issue a writ of habeas corpus.

Darcy's lawyer, former Pennsylvania Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, thereupon tried again in the U. S. District Court at Scranton. This court also refused to act and Margiotti appealed its ruling to the U. S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, sitting in Philadelphia.

The appellate court's decision is now being awaited. If it goes against Darcy, Margiotti said, it would still be possible to carry the case to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Says Speaker; County Candidates Answer Roll Call.

(SPECIAL TO COURIER)

BUCKINGHAM, October 9.—Ripping into President Truman for his failure to take prompt and vigorous action against the chiselers working for the national Government, Karl C. King, Republican candidate for the special congressional election to be held at the General election November 6, declared last night that the worst damage of all was the loss by young Americans of faith and confidence in their national officers.

Mr. King scathingly criticized the President for the extent to which corruption and selling of favors has been allowed to grow at Washington, and voiced a blistering indictment over the manner in which the guilty, when exposed, are protected from punishment out of a misplaced loyalty.

Talking as the principal speaker at a capacity rally of the Republican Club in its headquarters here, Mr. King said:

"Mr. Truman has fired men for political reasons, and for personal reasons. He has even fired them, as he fired MacArthur, for reasons which he himself has never been able to make clear. But whom has he fired for the simple reason of not being honest and honorable?"

"The loss of money is bad enough. The loss of efficiency is worse. But the loss of faith and confidence in our government on the part of our young people will be our greatest disaster. Indifference to these low standards of public conduct and the degeneracy of public morals will surely lead us to ruin."

Cadets Leave Amid Wild Cheering of Supporters

Amid the shouting of "goodbys," waving of hands, and the blowing of horns, Bracken Post Junior Drum and Bugle Corps, rolled out of town, last night, in two big buses Miami bound. They are going to compete in the national junior corps competition in the Florida city.

A crowd of several hundred assembled in front of the Bracken Post Home to cheer the boys along. Goodwill firemen were there with a flood light truck and the Pennell String Band played selections. The crowd stood upon the sidewalk and the street. All of the streets in the vicinity of the Bracken Post Home was filled with parked automobiles.

Burgess I. J. Hetherington spoke over a loud speaker reciting the corps history and said that the corps had reached its peak. He said that it was considered a compliment that the corps had been selected to enter the competition. "The trip will be educational and we know that your conduct will be what it should be. I wish you Godspeed and a safe journey. I'll be in Miami to root for you." The Burgess and his wife leave today for Florida for a three weeks' vacation.

President of Council, John F. Smoyer III, told the cadets that the Bristol people are "rooting for you." He commented upon the fine turnout of residents to see the boys off. "They are rooting for you 100 percent." Mr. Smoyer said that a football team had once been told that a "team that wouldn't be beaten couldn't be defeated, and so it is with a cadet corps."

Commander Stracchio thanked the public for the splendid cooperation given the corps in the raising of the fund. "Nearly $5,000 was raised," he said, "and we are going to spend it."

The eyes of some of the mothers became misty as they saw their offspring ride away for a great adventure. The eyes of many of the youths standing on the sidewalk clouded as they saw their pals ride away leaving them behind.

CIVIL DEFENSE REVERSED

Not all the energies of governments at their annual conference are concentrated on politics. Useful hours are devoted to mutual problems, and one of the most urgent to receive official attention has been civil defense. At Gatlinburg, Tenn., site of this year's conference, Civil Defense Administrator Millard Caldwell transmitted to the governors the latest federal plan for civil populations in the event of an atomic attack.

Briefly, Mr. Caldwell's latest program contemplates a mass exodus from New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island should their key cities become targets of hostile planes. He further revealed that it is proposed to shift affected populations in those states to Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

It was only a year ago that the National Security Resources Board issued a report on what target areas and their civilians were expected to do when the bomb fell. They were not expected to run. The report placed primary emphasis on the necessity of staying on the job, restoring industrial power and fighting back by getting into war production as swiftly as possible.

How communities and plants could be returned to production by shipping affected populations to Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont is no more clear than what Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont would do with the massed evacuees.

SEA AND AIR DEFENSES

Those who have been living in fear of Russian invasion, either by land or air, should feel easier as a result of statements by top military men.

Admiral W. M. Fechteler, chief of naval operations, says there is "no possibility whatever" of Russian armies invading this country so long as the U. S. Navy retains control of the sea. This superiority would not only keep Russia or any other enemy away from the home shores, but would enable the United States to successfully invade Russian territory if the need ever arose.

There has been much speculation about Russian submarine strength. Admiral Fechteler says the U. S. Navy is prepared to meet and defeat any underwater force the reds can muster. The Navy is ready in case red submarines enter the fighting in Korean waters, he says. Nor can Russia seriously jeopardize the United States through air raids, the admiral declares, speaking for another branch of the service.

If war comes in the next 20 or 30 years the Allies will win it, although a third world war is too horrible to contemplate, the admiral continues. If Russian leaders arrive at the same conclusions as Admiral Fechteler they will avoid all out war with the United States.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.

(Copyright, 1951, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—If successful, a coalition of southern Democrats and Republicans will establish a new political party in the nation. There are no precedents.

Senator Karl Mundt, the South Dakota Republican, has promoted a national coalition committee to encourage southern Democrats interested in bolting the Democratic party under its present leadership of President Truman and William Boyle. Mundt's present goal is short of creating a new political party, but in case of such an eventuality neither the south nor the GOP has anything to fear. Neither has the nation.

The first great political parties in the U. S. were the Federalists and the Republicans. The Federalists were led by Alexander Hamilton, the Republicans by Thomas Jefferson. By the year 1824 the differences between factions within both parties were greater than the differences between the two parties. The result was political realignment, or coalitions.

Much the same situation exists today. The majority of American voters are unable to find a clear-cut difference between the two labels, Democrat and Republican. Conservatives in the south vote with Republicans; radical Republicans vote with fair deal Democrats. Voters retain the right of selection but are unable to focus political wisdom on clear-cut objectives in either party.

When the liberal wing in Jefferson's Republican party got sore enough, it broke away to form the Democratic party. What was left became known as the national Republican party. It soon formed a coalition with the Whigs under the leadership of Daniel Webster. The next outbreak of coalition occurred in 1854.

At that time issues between various factions within political parties were once again greater than issues between the parties. A faction of the Whigs stuck by the national Republican party and in 1856 adopted Abraham Lincoln as a candidate, electing him in 1860. Disgruntled Whigs joined the Democrats and the political alignments continue in existence today, at least insofar as political labels are concerned.

Conservative southern Democrats refuse to be forced into accepting President Truman's fair deal program. The fair deal minority in the Republican party has done so. What Senator Mundt and his southern associates want to do is create a vehicle whereby fair deal Republicans can admit their political acceptance of the President's program, and conservative southern politicians can candidly admit their acceptance of the GOP program adopted by conservative Republicans.

Thomas P. Wall, Jr., president of the young Republican club of Nashville, Tennessee, has accepted the possibility of a southern-GOP coalition, and wants to call it the American party. He thinks it is an honorable way out for opposing factions within both political parties as they exist today, to say nothing of the break it would be for voters, both north and south.

This is what Senator Mundt is proposing. Mundt has not suggested that Democrats of the south join the Republican party. He simply thinks that conservatives of both parties have enough sense to get together and select candidates mutually acceptable. Just how such candidates could be placed before American voters if rejected at both political conventions, is the subject of considerable political soul searching at the moment.

A year is a long time in politics. Congressional investigative committees might solve the issue. A few dozen more scandals and the grip President Truman and Democratic national chairman William Boyle have on the party might be loosened considerably. In that event, with nominal party control restored to their hands, southern Democrats might be content to stay where they are, provided they can name the candidate for 1952.

Young Americans Have Lost Faith, Says Karl King

I think we in Bucks have been inclined to look at Lehigh as an industrial county, forgetting that throughout the hills of Lehigh county there is much valley farm-land naturally rich and productive. For a long time Lehigh has led the counties of this state in the production of potatoes. It also has some of the finest orchards of the state.

"The industry of Lehigh, while larger than that of Bucks up to date, is not so different except in the nature of the products manufactured. The natural beauty of both counties is similar, and wonderful, but the most important similarity is in the people. All are interested in high-standard living, with churches and schools, and all of the facilities which make for happiness and opportunity. All have an intense interest in good government. In both counties, the objective of political campaigning is the same government which will be fair without being oppressive.

"All over this district people are becoming definitely fearful that our gigantic federal administration will become crushingly oppressive. They see oppression in the form of heavy taxes, and we have not yet begun to pay the bill. They see the oppression in the form of controls and restrictions, which ignore the fundamental law of supply and demand, and implement the theory that a government board can be an all-wise dictator of what we produce, and how it shall be distributed.

"Step by step we are seeing the modification of our free enterprise system, with all the alterations pointing straight toward socialism, the first step on the road towards communism.

"My going to Congress will not allay all of the fears of impending socialism, but it will help, for I shall always be on the side of those who believe the federal government is getting too big, and being big, is a matter of self-preservation forces on the people oppressive taxes and restrictive regulations.

"I shall always be on the side of those who believe that our federal government should have a high standard of honesty and integrity, and with those who deplore immorality in any phase of our government.

"As you read the press, and listen to the radio, you cannot help but know that a looseness of morals has already spread throughout many departments of our national government. Perhaps you read in the last issue of Life Magazine, the article called 'Loans Made Easy.'

"President Truman says, 'my people are honorable—all of them.' But the May issue of Look Magazine summarizes his scandalous years as follows:

"Political morality in Washington has sunk to the lowest level in a quarter of a century. Four members of the White House staff have been implicated in undercover deals since 1945. Two friends of the White House have been convicted of fraud, a third indicted. Fourteen high federal officials have been exposed tugging at the golden chain of influence.

"Nine members of the administrative family have accepted valuable gifts, including the famous mink coat. Ten federal agencies have been tangled in shadowy manipulations. Almost nine hundred federal employees have been caught trying to improve their private fortunes through their position on the public payroll.

"Why don't they throw the rascals out? Every time the President tries to head off an investigation, he has tried to do with the Communist probe, the R. F. C. probe, and a host of others, he is doing the public a definite disservice, and giving aid and comfort to whatever crooks may have entrenched themselves on the public payroll.

"The President has duties and responsibilities which go far beyond the mere letter of the law. The man who occupies the White House should be a great ideal and model for the American people. He should be their example and the yardstick by which they measure their own principles of honesty.

"We older ones can remember a Democratic party with leaders who were unwavering in their high standards of personal conduct for themselves and all associates. It was Grover Cleveland who gave us the well-remembered phrase, 'Public office is a public trust.'

"But now how different! Ever since the days when Mr. Truman first came to Washington, there has been a record of corruption and dishonesty in connection with public affairs, such as we never have had before in American history. Washington is filled with contact men who know, or claim to know, someone on the inside. They toss their favors around with a free hand—deep freezes, mink coats, perfumes, cameras, hams, hotel suites—such a list of tips and bribes as Hollywood itself couldn't have invented for its most imaginative movie.

"Score of public officials have admitted under pressure their use of influence in getting favors for friends, but how many of those betrayers of public confidence have ever been fired from their jobs? How many times has the President stepped in to make an example of offenders caught in the act?

"What do you think the reaction of your voters is to all this scandal? What impression do they get of public servants, of politics, and of the federal administration, as they read the accounts of the brazen buying and selling of public favors by federal officials.

"Our future depends largely upon the young voters. Are they to assume from Mr. Truman's lack of action that we must tolerate a continuing dishonesty and immorality in our federal administration.

"But all is not yet lost. I shall go to Congress with the confidence there it is not yet too late to 'throw the rascals out' and change our course from corruption to trustworthiness. Time is getting short, for even now federal payrolls and patronage give the White House the advantage of a seven or eight million votes cast strictly for preservation of personal income.

"If we fail to throw the scamps out next year, we are likely to see the federal machine grow so large that a fourth of the voters of the entire country will be voting to save the trough from which the bureaucratic pigs feed."

Presiding over the meeting was State Senator Edward B. Watson, who is the club's president. Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Carol Michener. County Chairman A. Harry Clayton spoke briefly at the commencement of the meeting, urging all those present to work earnestly for the coming election.

"You are the ones who can see to it that the majorities of the past few years are increased," he declared.

The Lehigh County Chairman, J. W. Doubert, extended greetings to his Bucks County friends.

"November 6 is going to be a very important day," he said. "We all want to see a big Republican turnout. I can tell you that Lehigh County is going to give Mr. King a nice vote."

Senator Watson then conducted the rollcall of candidates. All but two of the county ticket were present and spoke briefly.

First to be introduced was Joseph W. Hallowell, of Warminster township, candidate for re-election to the County Commission.

"The big expansion which will be under way in the next few years in Lower Bucks County makes it very important for the county government to have the services of competent and experienced officials," he said.

Thomas R. Lewis, of Perkasio, the second nominee for County Commissioner, thanked the Republicans present for their support in the primary, and pledged efficient and economical management of the county's business affairs.

C. Herbert Haldeman, of Doylestown, candidate for register of wills, told of serving as deputy register of wills for seven years, and pledged to maintain the high standards of that department.

"I promise to give the best of my ability," said Miss Mary S. Yardley, of Lower Makefield Township, candidate for Clerk of Orphans Court. "The vote this fall is going to be a barometer for next year," declared H. Lamont Marsh, of Bristol, candidate for clerk of Quarter Sessions. "Let's everybody turn out, bring along your friends and neighbors, and show how big a vote we can roll up."

Russell J. T. Ferris, of Nockamixon township, candidate for coroner, also urged an intensive drive to bring out a heavy vote.

Judge Edward G. Biester, who is unopposed for re-election to the Common Pleas Court, said that the Republican ticket deserves wholehearted support.

"These candidates were nominated for a double-barrelled reason," he said. "First, because they have done work for the Republican Party and have supported Republican ideal; second, because they are the ones the party believes can help the Republican party make friends."

"The strength of the Republican party lies in the type of candidate and the way they meet the people who come to the public offices they fill. The traditions of the Republican Party call for men in office who are willing to serve the public, and to be helpful and courteous."

Only two of the candidates were unable to be present—George A. Krikory, of Richland Township, candidate for county treasurer, and Amos J. Kirk, of Buckingham township, running for re-election as county surveyor.

Former Congressman Lichtenwalter, to whom the meeting was turned over after the rollcall of candidates, gave high praise to Mr. King, who will be the first congressman from Bucks county in eighteen years. All those elected since 1933 have been from Lehigh.

"Mr. King found many, many friends in Lehigh county during his visit there, and made a tremendously favorable impression," he said. "He is the kind of man we can all be proud to send to Washington."

"There are a great many things wrong in our national government, and the only vehicle available to the American people to right those wrongs is the Republican Party. In this election let's roll up a majority the like of which was never seen before, so as to serve notice on those who, because of 'loyalty to friends' are permitting the integrity of our government to be undermined, that we are going to protect the principles of honor and responsibility upon which this nation was founded."

Following the political rally, Mr. and Mrs. Lichtenwalter took charge of an elaborate program of entertainment.

Among those who drove to the meeting from Lehigh county were: County Chairman and Mrs. J. W. Doubert; Captain and Mrs. George Ormrod, of Allentown; Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Smith, of Coopersburg; Mr. Lichtenwalter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Lichtenwalter, of Centre Valley; and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schreiber.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served.

Council Informed Water Condition is Very Critical

one million gallons per day, each. As no assurance can be given them that they can get this water in the immediate or near future, they will probably be forced to go elsewhere. In fact, one of them is considering a site in New Jersey—a probable loss of four more water customers and an indirect loss to every business and professional man and every property owner of Bristol and vicinity.

This situation is deplorable and would be desperate if it were not for two things:

1. An adequate supply at our door step—the Delaware River.

2. Ownership by the Borough of a river-side pumping and filtering site at Edgely.

Now that Bristol has been declared a critical defense area, you have a patriotic duty to supply an essential commodity—water. As good business men, you can create a valuable and lasting asset for the Borough, but time is running out.

Sincerely yours,

HUGH B. EASTBURN.

Civic Ass'n To Work For A Playground

EDGELEY, Oct. 9.—The regular monthly meeting of the Bristol Township Civic Association was held in the fire house, last evening. The meeting was called to order by President Albert C. Smith. At least 100 citizens attended.

President Smith called on the chairman of various committees for their monthly report. Warren Siegmund will contact the Township Commissioners for aid and assistance in putting a playground into operation on the ground in Croydon owned by the Rohm & Haas Company. This land may be used for youth sporting events, football, baseball, etc., but for nothing else, according to a representative of Rohm & Haas Company.

Mr. Smith announced copies of the Report of the Survey of Bristol Borough Municipal Water System would be distributed to all present. He encouraged everyone to read this report and then pass it on to a neighbor. In this way everyone will know just how the Borough and the Township must awaken and prepare for additional water facilities.

Mrs. Jo'nn Fullam, chairman of the Blood Program for Bristol District, told of the need for more blood donors and asked for as many present as possible to volunteer to share blood with some wounded G.I.

Mr. Smith then introduced the men and women who are running for political office this November. The candidates then gave a thumb nail sketch of their background and their activities in civic and political affairs.

The remainder of the evening was spent in discussing the sewage disposal plant to be built by the Danherst Corporation below Fergusonville. Many questions of grave importance were placed on the floor at this meeting. A committee will find out as many answers as soon as possible and report to the body at a later date and seek support from the township commissioners.

Welcome To Sailors Is Surprise; 75 Present

BRIDGEWATER, Oct. 9.—The welcome party tendered Edward Cullen, A/S, and John Cullen, A/S, Saturday evening, was a surprise to them. The affair took place at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Cullen. Edward has just returned from Europe, and John has been stationed at Key West, Fla. The two will soon report at Rhode Island, both being assigned to the U. S. S. "Samuel B. Roberts."

Seventy-five were present for the social affair. Music was provided by Mrs. Charles Caccara and John Brogan, accordionists; and a four-piece orchestra.

Realtors Accept 23 Brokers Into Membership

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 9.—Twenty-three real estate brokers, the largest single aggregation in the history of the organization, were accepted into membership at a dinner meeting of the Bucks County Board of Realtors, here. Only members are permitted to call themselves realtors.

President J. Carroll Molloy, Jr., presided and welcomed about 60 realtors, who heard Edwin H. Satterthwaite, a member of the Bucks County Bar, give a technical talk on the "Fiduciaries Act of 1949," which was most interesting and informative to the members.

Following a discussion, the board decided to go on record as opposing the State Property Transfer Tax on Real Estate which is 2 per cent and assessed against the seller.

Ten Bucks county realtors attend the Pennsylvania State Board of Realtors Convention in York, Sept. 23-26, and Charles J. Happ, well-known Doylestown realtor, gave a report on the convention.

Richard Fechtenburg, Eddington; A. Paul Townsend, Jr., Langhorne; Otto Grupp, Croydon, and George R. Smith, Doylestown, were named members of the nominating committee.

the Scheetz Building, to house some of the "Row" offices and other departments of the county government are also being executed by Mr. Martin.

Until the Grand Jury has approved the new plans and until county officials, including the County Commissioners, Judges and others, are thoroughly agreed on changes being practical and suitable, no plans for demolition of Court Room, No. 1, the judges' chambers, law library, Grand Jury room and several other rooms can get underway.

Clerk Harvey spiked the rumor that any portion of the Scheetz Building, the former Hellyer store, Monument Square, will be occupied by anything except county administered offices and branches of county government.

"We will need every inch of space," Clerk Harvey said.

general store. This will make the second temporary post office here within a matter of weeks, the present one being opened October 1st on Hulmeville road.

Due to the fact there are four mails received a day the post office is not the "gathering place" that is so often the case in small, rural post offices where mail arrives only once in the morning and once in the late afternoon. Box holders walk in, possibly en route to or from work or other duties, get their mail, and leave at once, states the postmaster.

Third Refusal Given, Darcy Case Review

from there, which would make the fourth time that tribunal would be asked to review the matter.

The basis for both appeals—the one turned down yesterday and the one still pending—is the contention that Darcy's Constitutional rights were violated when his trial lawyer failed to put the defendant on the witness stand or to produce character witnesses.

Darcy, who has had 10 reprieves, the last one after his head already had been shaved for the fatal electrocution at the Western State Penitentiary at Rockview, was sentenced with two other men—Harold Foster, 26, and Harry Zeitz, 21.

Zeitz, it was testified at the trial, fired the shot that killed William Kelly, 38, a patron, as the bandits fled the Feasterville Inn after the holdup. A second patron, Allen Helmerman, of 3453 Palmetto street, was wounded and died later.

A fourth member of the gang, Felix Capone, of Brill street, near Duffield, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Appeals on Darcy's behalf argued that he was tried alone, only a week after the conviction of Foster and Zeitz, and that he was a victim of the "hysteria which swept the town" of Doylestown, where the trial was held.

WEEKLY NEWSLETTER

Issued by The Pennsylvania Game Commission

Waterfowl Season Opens

Pennsylvania hunters will be in force to open the duck season at noon on October 12. Until the time that quackers and honkers now in Canada fly in, they will have to satisfy themselves largely with the product of local ponds and marshes, however.

Some of these ducks will wear aluminum leg bands. In recent years, data gathered from returned bands on ducks and geese has proved very valuable to the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service in tracing waterfowl migrations. It will be, similarly, to Pennsylvania wildlife authorities.

Such information, bearing on nearly 7,000 leg-banded ducks released by the Game Commission this summer, is urgently sought by these authorities in order to trace the movement of these ducks from release to kill. On each of the bands are the words, "Please notify Pennsylvania Game Commission, Harrisburg, Pa." Persons bagging ducks bearing such identification are urged to notify the Commission as to the band number, the date and location of the kill, and the hunter's name and address. This information will prove invaluable to the Commonwealth's future duck program. Information on leg-banded ducks killed by predators or found dead from any cause is as important to game administrators as that on fowl taken by hunters.

Everyone who notifies the Game Commission of a banded duck killed or found will be advised as to where and when the bird was released. The band may be retained by the shooter or discoverer.

Those bagging birds bearing Fish and Wildlife Service bands should inform Seth E. Low, Patuxent Wildlife Refuge, Laurel, Md., as to the band number, location and date of kill.

Judging from reports received from the principal duck breeding areas to the north, Pennsylvania's migratory bird hunters should enjoy a good season if weather and nature cooperate by sending the ducks and geese southward during the season, October 12 to November 24, inclusive.

Archery Information For Pennsylvanians

During the two week period October 15 to 27, inclusive, excepting the Sunday, archers may enjoy a deer season all their own for the first time in Pennsylvania.

Before going afield for an October buck hunt, each bow and arrow hunter must first obtain a "regular" license, which costs $3.15. He must also have a Special Archery License and Archery Preserve Permit, which is a single license, costs $2.00 and is obtained from the Department of Revenue, Harrisburg, if he wishes to hunt:

(a) During the October bow and arrow season or, (b) In any open season in the special archery preserves located in Forest and Sullivan counties.

If the bow hunter wishes to hunt antlerless deer during the "deer" season, December 14-15, in either or both of the archery preserves, he must have a regular hunting license, a Special Archery License and Archery Preserve Permit plus an antlerless deer license for the county in which the preserve is located.

Except as above defined, bow and arrow hunters require only a current resident or nonresident hunting license to hunt small game or bears during the lawful open season for such game species.

A bow and arrow hunter may kill one legal antlered deer, which must be a buck with two or more points to one antler, in the state-wide October season. He may not carry a firearm of any kind while hunting with bow and arrow in the October archery season.

Any person who desires to use bow and arrow during the "regular" buck season in December, needs only his 1951 hunting license. However, before anyone, bowman or gunner, may hunt for antlerless deer on December 14 and 15, he must purchase, also, an antlerless deer license costing $1.10 from a county treasurer or the Department of Revenue, at Harrisburg, unless permitted by law to hunt without license on land he owned or immediately adjacent thereto.

The section of the law which provides that certain farmers and landowners may hunt game without the usual resident hunting license does not apply in the 1951 archery season. New legislation bearing on bow and arrow hunting requires that everyone own both a "regular" hunting license and an archery license to hunt or kill antlered deer anywhere in Pennsylvania during the October season. There are no exceptions.

The Legislative Act on bow and arrow hunting states that it shall be unlawful, during the archery season for deer, to hunt for, kill or attempt to kill any deer with any weapon other than a bow and arrow, or with any bow other than a long bow controlled without the aid of mechanical means, or with any arrow with any explosive in the head or shaft.

It is anticipated that, due to the separate archery season for deer this year, the number of deer killed in Pennsylvania will jump tremendously over that of 1950, when but 5 were killed by arrows. Even with the increase in bow and arrow hunters, the Robinhoods will probably reap more enjoyment and health benefit from their hunting expeditions than they will deer. It takes skill and plenty of woodsman's know-how for an archer to bag a deer. The bow cannot compete with the gun as a game-killing instrument.

Undoubtedly many more archers than formerly will hunt this year on agricultural land. Some of the rural folk have expressed opposition to this "extra" season. Bowmen are often complimented on their sense of sporting values. It will remain for this year's advance guard to pave the way for archers of the future by demonstrating not only sportsmanship but safety, also tact in approaching farmers on whose land they wish to hunt.

Hunting With Semi-Automatic Firearms

An act recently passed by the General Assembly makes it lawful for hunters in Pennsylvania to use semi-automatic shotguns for the hunting and killing of only small game, predators and unprotected birds. These guns are unlawful for the hunting or killing of deer or bear.

Other automatic guns, or automatic firearms of any kind (rifles or pistols) still may not be used to hunt for, catch, take, kill, or wound, or attempt to catch, take, kill or wound any wild bird or wild animal of any kind in the Commonwealth.

Numerous hunters will use semi-automatic shotguns in hunting wild waterfowl in the Keystone state this fall. They are reminded that, as with hand-operated repeating shotguns, federal regulations require that their firearms be plugged to 3 shell capacity in such a manner that the plug cannot be removed without disassembling the gun.

Wild Ducks Transmit Their Wariness to Stocked Fowl

Norbert J. Molski, Game Protector, Wyalusing, tells that: "In checking on some of the ducklings released earlier this summer in Bradford County, I raised a flock in one particular pond and thought them somewhat wilder and flightier than most released ducks. When they were airborne I counted two more than we originally stocked there. Evidently, some native or migratory ducks had joined them and their wariness and cautiousness were transmitted to the released fowl. If it were only possible for the ducklings the Commission liberates to intermingle with native or migratory ducks, I think our waterfowl program would be improved."

Hunter Applies For Trip to Hereafter

A Beaver County Game Protector, D. W. Heacock, says, "It's small wonder we have hunting 'accidents'. On a September game lands patrol in my district I discovered a woodchuck hunter perched about 12 feet above ground in a tree. As I watched to see how he would descend, the man shot a 'chuck and decided to come to earth."

"I was particularly interested in the manner in which he managed the gun while climbing down. He attached a wire to the trigger guard, grasped the gun by the muzzle, lowered the weapon as far as he could reach, then let go of it. The result was that the gun banged against the tree trunk several times. During the lowering operation, the muzzle was pointed upward, directly toward the man's face. I held my breath and tried to figure out what I was going to use to sweep up the pieces."

"When I checked the firearm after the hunter reached the ground, I found one shell in the chamber and one in the magazine. I asked him if he ever heard of anyone having his head blown off while lowering a gun out of a tree the way he did. The man said he had heard of such occurrences, but he was 'sure' his gun would not fire because it was on 'safe'."

Game Lands Grain Strips Supplement Natural Forest Foods

Game Protector Rozell A. Studd is proud of developments on State Game Lands under his management. He says:

"During the month of August, approximately 170 bushels of wheat and 140 bushels of rye were combined from about 27 acres of food plots on mountain Game Lands No. 13, southeast of Laporte, Sullivan county. These food plots were newly cleared a year ago. Besides the grain that was combined, a narrow strip all around the edges of the plots was left standing for turkey feed. One evening in late April, I counted over sixty deer eating in these food strips, and you could not see even one green blade any place in the fields."

Morrell Takes On Soccer As New Sport

A Bristol Township resident, James Morrell, has taken to a new sport at Lock Haven State Teachers College. Morrell, known for his baseball pitching ability, has now turned to soccer and has made the position of right wing. He participated in the game last week which saw Lock Haven beat Bucknell, 3-1.

"Pete" Powilus, who played first base for Voltz-Texaco in the Tri-County League last season, is also a member of the varsity squad.

Morrell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morrell, Bath Addition.

DART LEAGUE TO MEET

The Dart League of the Bristol Clubmen's Association will meet Thursday evening at 8:30 at St. Ann's A. A. To date six teams have entered the league: Moose, V. F. W., No. 1 Fire Co., St. Ann's A. A., Clinton J. Lewis Lodge, and Mutual Aid Society. This, the third season of the league, promises to be a good one. Organizations desiring to enter the league are invited to attend this meeting. Further information on the league can be obtained by contacting Frank J. Fuoco.

Bonus of $50 Paid Borough Employees

There is $5500 owed for engineering services, $13,000 for consulting engineers and $29,000 for plant expenditures. Mr. Riley asked Harold F. Hunter, treasurer, if the borough was going to end the year in the "red." Mr. Hunter said that it must not be forgotten that the amusement tax had been estimated at $15,000 so far only $10,000 has been received and that the tax income had been estimated at $100,000 and that so far over $90,000 had been collected.

The vote on adopting the report of the committee resulted in its defeat by nine to seven. Those supporting the committee were: Winters, Byers, Pascale, Riley, Ferry, DeLissio and Duffy. It was then that the vote on paying the $50 non-recurring cost-of-living bonus was acted upon.

After considerable debate council voted in favor of paying the bonus with the exception of Pascale and Byers. Mr. Byers informed council that with him it was not a question of not wanting to pay the borough employees more money, but that the finances of the borough could not stand it. Mr. Byers said the committee had studied the question for three months.

Mr. Smoyer told the finance committee that he realized the position of the committee. They had made a study of the situation and that he knew just what the committee has to contend with.

The invocation was by Rabbi Aaron Moskovits. All members of council were present except Lynn and Alta.

Upon the recommendation of the health and sanitation committee, R. T. Myers, chairman, the Robin & Haas Company are to be sent a letter requesting that they investigate their furnaces and endeavor to stop the discharge of soot and ash which lodges on automobiles and clothes in the Third Ward area. Upon motion Clarence Garretson was made a full-time borough employee.

The dump to the rear of Karp's Store, Farragut avenue, has been referred to health officer for investigation. The Superior Zinc Corporation is to be sent a letter requesting that the smoke and fumes from their plant be investigated, as they are considered detrimental to the health of the residents in the area of the plant.

The health and sanitation committee was given authority to advertise for bids, as soon as the finance committee reports that it is possible to do so, for the sewer plant improvement and enlargement.

Councilman DeLissio, street committee, told council that some overhead signs have been placed without permits and that the same had been ordered removed. Curbing was ordered placed at East Farragut avenue and Green Lane for the traffic lights, providing the curbing does not come on private property.

John L. Kilcoyne, borough solicitor, was authorized to take the necessary steps to open Yeaman's Alley in the Third Ward to public travel.

Street committee was instructed to look into the ordinance which prohibits other than brick or concrete sidewalks. It was stated that Barker-Williamson has asked permission to place a black-top walk on the Canal street side of their property at Canal and Beaver street, but that the present ordinance prohibits such construction. It was argued that other exceptions have been made and that the borough itself paved the walks on the Beaver street bridge with a black-top composition.

Parking is to be prohibited on Canal street between Lafayette street and Jefferson avenue as a safety measure for a trial period of 30 days, Eagan, chairman of police committee, reported.

There was a petition received from 20 residents along Grand ave., presented by Councilman Pascale, asking that the one-way traffic be abolished and that the street return to its former status. This will automatically come to pass within the next few days, as the trial period ends for one-way regulations. Parking conditions along Otter street are still unsatisfactory, it was reported and parking meters or two-hour parking was suggested.

The statistical report of the police committee showed the following:

Held for court, 6; fined, 5; committed to county prison, 1; case continued, one; discharged, one; lodgers sheltered, 115; street lights reported out, four; doors found unlocked, three; alarms answered by radio car, 308; alarms answered by township radio car, 104; fined for parking violations, 66; fines paid for parking violations, 367; miles radio car traveled, 4222; dogs destroyed, three; escorts, 48; warnings given to juvenile bicycle riders, six; accidents investigated, eight; pedestrians hurt, two; persons injured in auto accidents, five; property damaged in auto accidents, four; collections from parking meters, $1,086.19; reckless driving, three; speeding, one; driving without a license, one; passing stop sign, one; passing red light, one; unnecessary noise, two. Fines collected for state, $75; fines collected for borough, $20.

Councilman Smoyer thanked the committee handling the recent meeting of the Bucks County Boroughs Association here, saying it was a job well done. He discharged the committee with thanks and council voted its appreciation to Goodwill Fire Co., for the use of the hall upon the occasion. The committee was discharged.

The Zoning Committee of council was discharged as the zoning law now rests in the hands of the zoning commission for public hearings and presentation to council.

Upon the suggestion of Francis J. Byers council voted to send a letter of condolence to J. S. Lynn, due to the death of his father, Leo L. Lynn, and council voted to send a floral tribute.

Upon the suggestion of Councilman Riley the finance committee was authorized to investigate the status of Frank Di Pento who is ill and who has been employed by the borough for nearly 40 years.

Signs were approved for 239 Radcliffe street, Massi Agency; 200 Mill street, Mignoni Jewelry Store; foot of Pond street, Auto Boys; 120 Mill street, Fashion Center.

Justice of Peace Anthony Niccolai paid the borough $20 collected in fines.

Burgess Hetherington told borough council that he had been advised by the Bucks County Commissioners that they do not have the right to employ anyone to make assessments on property for tax purposes. This is the function, the commissioners contend, of the assessors. In the letter which the Burgess said he received from the commissioners it was stated that borough council or the school board could appeal any assessment, if they so desired, but that the last day for appeals was October 1st.

The Burgess said that some assessors were raising the assessment on some properties. He gave as an illustration the property now occupied by the A&P Super Market, which he said was raised from $5500 to $20,000 and then upon appeal was cut to $12,000. He said that the assessment on the Hugh B. Eastburn property on Mill street had been increased and that the increase was willingly accepted by Mr. Eastburn. "Some gas stations along Pond street have been given higher assessments and they have been accepted. The new A&P Super Market built on the site of the former Methodist Burying Ground has been assessed at $22,000, according to the Burgess.

The Burgess informed council that he had been ordered away by his physician and that he is leaving today for Florida for several weeks. The president of Council, John F.

Smoyer III will be the acting burgess.

Councilman Wichser reported new fire hose has been received.

School Administrators, Teachers at Institute

QUAKERTOWN, Oct. 9 — With teachers of all public schools in Bucks County except Bristol borough attending an institute here yesterday, most of the county pupils had a holiday. Dr. Charles Boehm, superintendent of Bucks county schools, called the session, held in the local school buildings. About 900 teachers and school administrators were present for the all-day meetings.

Dr. Harold Benjamin, dean of the School of Education of the University of Maryland, gave the principal address at the opening session. His topic was "Education in a Democracy."

Teachers then met in small groups and discussed such topics as curriculum at all grade levels, extra-curriculum activities and evaluation of teaching methods and policies.

Dr. Oliver S. Heckman, principal of the Neshaminy high school, Langhorne, served as chairman of the meeting on evaluation of elementary and high school education.

Dr. Ira Kraybill, of the University of Pennsylvania, Phila., executive secretary of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools addressed the group.
